

CHILD CUSTODY IN PHILADELPHIA

WHAT IS CUSTODY?

A custody order is a written order signed by a judge. It determines who will provide care for a child. It is composed of two parts:

Physical Custody –where the child actually lives.

- Primary – gives the party the right to have the child live with him or her most of the time;
- Partial – gives the non-primary custodian the right to take possession of the child away from the custodial parent at specified times;
- Visitation – gives the non-custodial parent the right to visit the child but does not include the right to remove the child from the custodial parent’s control. May be supervised by the custodial parent or other responsible adult;
- Joint – refers to the sharing of custody.

Legal Custody – the right to make important decisions in a child’s life, such as medical, religious, and educational decisions, which can be sole or shared.

WHO MAY FILE FOR CUSTODY IN PHILADELPHIA?

- Jurisdiction – Your child must have lived in Philadelphia for at least 6 months in order for the Court to be able to hear your case. There are a few exceptions to this rule, for example if the child is under 6 months old.
- Standing – In order to obtain custody, you must either be a parent of the child or have acted in loco parentis. You may have acted in loco parentis if you have taken on the responsibilities of parenthood for a period of time.

HOW TO FILE FOR CUSTODY?

Where: The Intake Unit of Philadelphia Family Court, located in the main lobby at 34 S. 11th St.

Emergency Petition: If you fear for the child’s safety, you may petition the court to hear your case on an emergency basis. If you do not petition for or are not granted emergency custody, you and the opposing party or parties will be sent a Notice to Appear in court.

What to bring to file for custody: You should bring any important papers and information such as previous custody orders, protection from abuse orders, the opposing party’s address and social security numbers for all parties.

Court Filing Cost: It costs $90.38 to file. If you petition for emergency custody, it will cost an extra $42.68.

Custody Modification: If you want to change your custody arrangement you may file a modification petition. The fee is $42.68.

Contempt of Custody: If someone violates the order, he or she may be held in contempt of court. There is no fee to file a contempt petition.

WHAT HAPPENS IN COURT?

At court you will meet with a master. If there is no prior protection from abuse order, you may participate in optional mediation. If you do not feel comfortable mediating an agreement, a custody master will talk to you about your case. If you reach an agreement with the other party at the master’s conference, a judge will enter the agreement as an order. If you do not reach an agreement, the custody master will either take testimony and make a recommendation to the judge (partial custody and visitation cases only) or issue a temporary order and give a date to have your case decided by a judge.

HOW DOES THE COURT DECIDE CUSTODY?

A judge or master, after holding a hearing, decides the custody arrangement based on what is in the best interest of the child. Factors include:

- Where the child is currently living.
- How the child is doing in his/her current situation; at home, at school and in the community.
- Your ability to care for the child.
- The parties' situation; where they live, with whom they live, whether they have a history of substance abuse or a criminal record, and whether there is a history of domestic violence.
- If there are issues of substance abuse or mental health, the judge may order a home investigation, mental health assessment or drug and alcohol screening.
- The judge is allowed to question the child.

HOW DO I PREPARE FOR THE HEARING?

- Testimony – each party may present their side and ask questions of the other side.
- Evidence – you may bring school or medical records or other important papers or photographs. You have the right to see everything that the other side wants to show the court. Make two copies of whatever you plan on giving to the court — the judge or master gets the original, the other side gets a copy and you keep a copy.
- Witnesses – you may want to bring witnesses to testify on your behalf. Witnesses must present a subpoena to be admitted into the court. Any court employee at 34 S. 11th Street can assist you in obtaining a subpoena. Give your witnesses the subpoena before the hearing date and have them show it to the security guard upon entering the courthouse.

WHAT IF I DISAGREE WITH THE COURT ORDER OR MASTER?

- If your case is to determine primary custody and you do not reach an agreement before the master, your case will be scheduled for trial before a judge. You should speak to an attorney as soon as possible.
- If you disagree with a master's proposed partial custody order, you may file exceptions within 10 days after you receive the written recommendation. In your exceptions, you must explain in writing why you think the master's proposal is wrong. The exceptions must be filed in person or received by mail within the 10 days. After the exceptions are filed, there will be a hearing before a judge. You will need to explain to the judge what the master did wrong. You should speak to an attorney as soon as possible if you want to file exceptions.
- If you disagree with a Judge's order, you may file a request for reconsideration. You should talk to an attorney as soon as possible if you want to file such a request.
- You may also file an appeal with the Superior Court of Pennsylvania within 30 days of the date of the court order. You should talk to an attorney as soon as possible if you decide to appeal to Superior Court. A request for reconsideration does not stop the 30 days from running.

Do you need a lawyer?

Filing for a custody order, or petitioning to modify a custody order, can be a complicated process, especially if your (ex)spouse is not in full agreement. Appeals and modifications are common. You should have legal representation.
